

There is only one general "dress code" requirement on the ALS:

All staff, users, and visitors must wear closed-toe shoes on the experimental floor, accelerator area, and all peripheral lab areas.

This is to provide protection from the various slip/trip, abrasion, and kicking hazards associated with the equipment on the floor.

We also require that pants or an apron are worn when handling cryogenics, something that is done routinely when using the infrared beamline.